AKF Code Group Congratulates Caitlyn Angelini, PE

AKF is pleased to announce that Caitlyn Angelini, Code Consultant in AKF's Boston office, has received her PE in Fire Protection from the State of Massachusetts.

Caitlyn's expertise includes building, fire, life safety and accessibility code consulting for both existing buildings and new construction projects in accordance with local and national codes and standards. Her responsibilities include existing building field surveys, thorough reviews of architectural plans including egress analyses and smoke compartment evaluations, and preparation of code reports and life safety plans. Additional experience includes egress modeling, fire and smoke modeling, hazardous materials analysis, fire resistance rating evaluations, insurance claims support and due diligence studies.

About AKF Code

The rapid evolution of construction codes at the national and local levels presents challenges for design professionals and owners undertaking new and existing building projects. As codes develop in response to advancements in building materials, methods, and systems, the importance of code compliance as a central aspect of project delivery is reinforced repeatedly. AKF Code provides assistance with code review and regulatory approvals throughout the design and construction process to ensure that code compliance is achieved in all aspects of the project.
